Conclusions

- Our Bento Box extension enables comparison of multiple large FSI simulations at interactive rates.
- The GPU memory required for our approach implies that the number of instances can scale beyond 10 instances.
- We hope that this case study can inspire more work in combining large data visualization techniques with interactive exploration.

References